A Weekly Analysis of Energy Stocks Using the McDep Ratio October 4, 2005

Accentuate the Positive

Summary and Recommendation

Higher oil and gas prices reflect strong global growth, stimulate new investment in supply and point to profits for investors in buy-recommended stocks. Mega cap stocks seem to have barely responded to the positive trends in crude oil, natural gas and oil refining. Producer/refiners are demonstrating the rewards of international diversification with Russia attracting the most attention lately. Large cap independent producers are starting to shine in stock price as oil and gas have in commodity price. Small cap producers offer extra appreciation for investors interested in limited capitalization. Income stocks offer rising cash distributions with bonus appreciation. While accentuating the positive, eliminate the negative by selling the stocks that hide debt and overstate earnings by our analysis.

Oil Steady, Natural Gas Catching Up

Natural gas price in dollars a million btu has only partly caught up with crude oil price in dollars a barrel. Until a month ago, a disparity had been widening from two years ago when six-year natural gas was priced at six-year oil divided by 5 (see charts Six-Year Commodity Price Meter and One-Year Commodity Price Meter). Those who argue that natural gas is expensive make comparisons with dirty fuels such as heavy fuel oil and coal. Accentuating the positive we would rather encourage more long term supply of cleaner fuel. To be comparable to natural gas, oil needs to be refined further -- think higher refining profits. Coal needs to be gasified to be acceptable – think General Electric, the world's second largest company, seeking leadership in applying needed technology.

Refining Crack Holds Strongly

When integrated company stocks lagged producer stocks 28 years ago, the outlook for refining was not great. That has changed and the stocks of producers who are also in refining offer enhanced appreciation potential. The trend in the crack spread, a measure of refining cash flow, continues the definitive move above the 40-week average initiated earlier in 2005 (see chart One-Year Refining Crack Meter).

Buy Natural Gas, Oil and Refining in the Stock Market

Current stock prices for natural gas and oil producers approximate a median McDep Ratio of 0.88 (see table Rank by McDep Ratio). A McDep Ratio of 1.0 presumes a 7% per year real return on constant real prices for oil of $50 a barrel, natural gas of $10 a million btu and refining crack of $10 a barrel.

Stocks are ranked in descending order of McDep Ratio to suggest "buy low and sell high". We recommend representation in each of the five groups from Mega Cap to Income with emphasis on low McDep Ratio stocks.

Next Twelve Months Cash Flow, Ebitda, changes weekly with futures prices for natural gas and oil (see table Rank by EV/Ebitda). We regularly check the correlation of present value with cash flow multiple by business and expected life of production.

Stocks of companies headquartered in other countries diversify political risk (see table Home Country and Business Segments). The Russian stocks offer more potential gain in resource value.

Finally, we recommend balance among business segments. Investors should be sure to be represented in the stocks of companies with strong natural gas concentration. Nor should that be at the expense of reasonable downstream exposure in other stocks.

Timely analyses are available on all recommended stocks (see table Index of Recent Research).
